Almost There ©

In 2 weeks, you will be taking your Finals. Some of you are more than ready for it, some of you will probably stress the day before, and others probably just can't wait to get it over with. School is almost out. You are ALMOST there ③ You probably didn't think you'd make it this far, but here you are! Just think, in a few more weeks, you won't have to worry about papers, deadlines, exams, etc. It'll all be over and you will be stress free!

Getting through the semester is never an easy task, so I commend you for making it this far! Once you make it to the end of your journey, all the sacrifices will have been worth it.

Get it done ☺

Enjoy the rest of the week ©

ASCC Nursing Students
Assisting Manu'a Residents
By James Kneubuhl, ASCC
Press Officer

Thirteen students from the Nursing Program at the American Samoa Community College (ASCC) will be in Ta'u, Manu'a from Monday, April 29th to Friday, May 3rd as part of a community outreach project to share information on healthy living and assist residents in understanding the diagnosis, treatments and medications associated with various diseases and disorders common to American Samoa. The ASCC nursing students will visit homes and schools within the villages of Ta'u, Fitiuta, and Faleasao to provide health education on asthma, foot sepsis, hypertension, diabetes, and skin disorders. They will also visit Manu'a High School to discuss the ASCC Nursing Program, assist the Public Health nurses at the Ta'u dispensary with care, and give flu shots.

The outreach project has been organized by the ASCC Nursing Department and its students working towards Registered Nurse (RN) certification, along with the American Samoa Area Health Education Center (ASAHEC). Participating students are enrolled in the class Adult Health II (NUR 207) and have had experience in the leadership and management components of the course through working in the Medical/Surgical, Operating Room, Intensive Care Unit, and Emergency Department at LBJ Hospital. "These students know the responsibilities of a Registered Nurse in the clinical area", said ASCC Nursing Department chairperson Lele Ah Mu, "and the visit to Ta'u will provide them with the opportunity to apply these skills in a traditional village context."

Ah Mu emphasized the importance of the Nursing students applying their knowledge in an unfamiliar setting. "This will give them a broader perspective on good communication skills and proper patient interaction as they put their health knowledge and care experience into practice", she said. "They have a firm understanding of the common diseases and disorders that commonly afflict the people of American Samoa, and this part of their training will give them experience applying that knowledge on a human level." The travelling student group consists of eight young ladies: Audrey Mauga, Fa'afaetai Tau, Fa'asili Feleti, Marsha Scratch, Renna Salanoa, Senerita Letufuga, To'elau Tuiasosopo, and Tu'u Panama; and five gentlemen: Don Eric Sebastian, Ritchell Toribio, Setoga Siatu'u, Shane Chen, and Staniel Dimaya. Funding for the trip has been provided by ASAHEC and the American Samoa Department of Education Scholarship Program for Nursing. Ah Mu said that in the fall 2013 semester there are tentative plans for the ASCC Practical Nursing (PN) students to make a similar trip, during which they hope to serve Ofu, Olosega and Sili. For more information on the ASCC Nursing Program, call 699-1586.

ASCC Fine Arts Department Presents Film Festival this Thursday

By James Kneubuhl, ASCC Press Officer

Photography (ART 165) students at the American Samoa Community College had a unique opportunity to explore the connection between stills and moving images when the Fine Arts Department, in collaboration with Pacific Islanders in Communications (PIC), presented an all-day festival of Samoa-and-Pacific-related films last Thursday, April 19th. The lineup of free screenings consisted of a mixture of local and regional works along with a selection from PIC, a Hawaii-based funding and artistic development resource organization that serves fledgling filmmakers in the American Pacific.

"The same principles of composition that guide still photography are also employed in moving pictures, only on a higher level," said ASCC art facilitator Regina Meredith, who also teaches ART 165. "I'm hoping that students who have a knack in the most basic part of the medium, still photography, will be inspired to pursue further study in the more advanced part, filmmaking." Meredith emphasized that the festival offered students and the public a chance to analyze a kind of motion picture slightly different from what they may be familiar with. "The films were different in nature to what we'd see at the movie theaters, but they were developed in the same way. It illustrates how creativity can drive anyone to express themselves, and that it doesn't have to take huge amounts of money, but rather a passion for expression and sharing something with others. One could look at short films like a painter would look at his/her paintings--they are works of art that carry a message, and the viewer can walk away from the piece feeling many different things."

Aside from highlighting the technical and stylistic aspects of photography and filmmaking, the works showcased at the festival also illustrated how Pacific islanders can tell their own stories through this medium. PIC, founded in 1991, seeks to empower the people of the American Pacific to express themselves through film and video, as stated in their mission to "support, advance, and develop Pacific Island media content and talent that results in a deeper understanding of Pacific Island history, culture, and contemporary challenges." PIC helps Pacific Islander stories reach national audiences through funding support for productions, training and education, broadcast services, and community outreach. The organization's affiliation with ASCC goes back many years, with the College having hosted a number of PIC trainings and film festivals since the 1990s and Meredith currently a member of the PIC Board of Direcors.

Speaking via phone from Honolulu, PIC Interim Executive Director Leanne Ferrer expressed her regrets that the organization could not attend the upcoming festival, but encouraged Meredith's use of PIC films for academic purposes. "Once students have an understanding of the basic elements of filmmaking, the next question they should ask is how they would use this medium themselves," she reflected. "Would they use it just for entertainment or as a means of defining themselves and their culture to the rest of the world? For what it's worth, we've found that many people in other parts of the world still have either no conception or a misconception of the reality of life in the Pacific, so I would encourage students to think of both photography and filmmaking as a powerful tool for both documenting and defining their own realities and stories."

The festival began with introductory remarks from Meredith and preview's of the day's lineup. PIC films screened included: "O a'u o le Taupou" (5 mins.); "Le Malaga" (15 mins.); "Poi Dogs" (10 mins.); "Stones" (20 mins.); "Skin Stories" (1 hr.); "Moke Action" (6 mins.), . The Samoan Heart" (27 mins.) "Ajuma: Are You Crazy?" (26 mins.) and "Black Grace" (1 hr.). Micah Van der Ryn of ASCC also screened his work "Tatau: What One Must Do" (29 mins.), which was followed by local filmmaker Zena Noah Iese, who offered a sneak preview of a work in progress titled "Heart to Heart". Samoa filmmaker Galumalemana Steven Percival shared a work-in-progress, "Gender Equality in Samoa", followed by a question and answer session. The final film of the day was "Turtle And Shark" (5 mins.), a BYU University animated production.

Scholarship opportunities for the taking

As reported on Talanei.com

April 18, 2013

Local high school graduates and college students are invited to apply for three scholarship opportunities for young people announced today by the Federation of American Scientists and the Pacific Island Society.

These are the Pacific Young Leaders on Disarmament Project, the Pacific Security Scholars Project, and the Young Pacific Artists Program.

The programs provide an opportunity for students to contribute their research and artistic work for submission to international conferences.

The Pacific Young Leaders on Disarmament Project started by the Federation of American Scientists and the Pacific Island Society provides young leaders in foreign policy with an international forum to voice their ideas.

Participants in the program will be asked to draft a hypothetical statement for their country to the Conference on Disarmament that advances their country's national security interests. The statements will be delivered to the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva, Switzerland with the start of the 2014 session.

The deadline to apply is April 30.

The Pacific Security Scholars
Programn started by the Pacific Islands Society will provide post-graduate students from Pacific Island countries with an opportunity to make their voice heard on the important issue of "International Security and the Pacific Islands"

Selected scholars will produce regular articles and opinion pieces on directed issues for publication by the Pacific Islands Society blog. The deadline for applying to this program is May 20.

The Pacific Islands Society is also starting the "Young Pacific Artists Program" where young artists can promote their work to be featured on the Pacific Islands Society blog, alongside a brief profile of the artist.

The deadline to apply is June 30.

The Pacific Island Society is an independent non-partisan organization dedicated to promoting stronger relationships among Pacific Island nations through the use of educational and cultural exchanges.

Congressman Faleomavaega Eni Hunkin encourages every qualified student in American Samoa to take advantage of these unique opportunities. He thanks the Pacific Island Society for reaching out to students from American Samoa to take advantage of these wonderful opportunities.

Word of the day

gander \GAN-der\noun

Slang. A look.

Take a gander at his new shoes.

Fun Facts

- 1) Bruce Lee was so fast that they actually had to slow a film down so you could see his moves. That's the opposite of the norm!
- 2) Bone is five times stronger than steel.
- 3) Tiger shark embryos fight each other in their mother's womb. The survivor is born.
- Over 4 million cars in Brazil are now running on gashol instead of petrol. Gasohol is a fuel made from sugar cane.
- 5) A normal person will die from total lack of sleep sooner than from starvation. Death will occur about 10 days without sleep, while starvation takes a few weeks!
