Think About It By Uperesa Fakava

Bullying is the act of discouraging or frightening with threats or a domineering manner.

Bullying has existed in the world for so long, mankind can do nothing about it but warn people that it is a negative act and try to place preventative measures.

This act should not be tolerated and if it was legal to punch bullies in the act, I would have no problem doing it.

Now, the lesson.

Bullying falls under the ZERO TOLERANCE POLICY act on ASCC campus. Meaning, if one were to behave in this manner, their educational records would be smeared with a "suspension" mark. Yes, my friends, look it up in the most recent ASCC catalog, 2014 – 2016, page 31.

Why do people bully? Are you having trouble at home? Are you facing difficulties in life? If you do, then why on earth belittle the existence of other people? Why not face your fears or try to act mature and straighten yourself out.

Bullying has such a negative effect on others, there are many cases that have lead to suicide.

If you want to bully, bully your education because at lease you will be doing yourself a favor.

ASCC, stop bullying. There is more to life than just terrorizing innocent people.

Wouldn't it be great to live in a world where bullying does not exist? It would truly be a fairy tale for most bullied people. If this world existed, it would be the Utopia I dream of.

If you are a bully, try to think of what it is like to be in the others shoes. Those "funny" names being called out, the constant pushing over or tripping over others feet?

Students, help ASCC become a bully-free zone. Take the steps to help your fellow comrades when they are being targeted by bullies and let staff know when you witness this wicked act.

Think about it!

Zero Tolerance

Other acts under the Zero Tolerance Policy include weapons, explosives, fighting, drugs and alcohol (includes drunkenness) on campus. Find more information on ASCC's Zero Tolerance Policy:

- ASCC Catalog
- ASCC Student Handbook
- www.amsamoa.edu

It is important to be aware of this policy because you get ZERO chances if you break these rules.

Campus Talk: Veto Override Referendum

There was a lot of talk about the Veto Override. Here are a few opinions of some students collected by Fresh Print Staffer, Anna Iosefo.

Yes. “The Veto-Override Referendum guarantees the Fono’s veto-override power, thus giving the Fono the exclusive right to finalize their decisions locally without outside intervention. The secretary of D.O.I does not understand our culture and traditions; local issues should be decided upon local jurisdiction. Therefore, to conclude my point, I am in favor of the Veto-Override Referendum. All 50 states and territories abide by this system of checks and balances; it's time for us to transition.”

-Ace Levaula

Yes. “I am for it. I think our government needs change; we need to take steps on our own and try it out. If it doesn't work out for us in the next few years, we can always vote again to change it back. How do we know if this is going to help us out if we don't at least try it? We just need to have faith in our leaders and keep our culture going despite these changes, and I believe that we can do that even if we give the Fono this power of veto override...We got to take risks: ‘No Risk, No Reward.’”

-Deborah Malauulu

Yes. “I support the Veto-Override Referendum due to a variety of reasons, but mostly because the current system in American Samoa allows the U.S. Secretary of Interior to make the final decision on a proposal that was vetoed by the governor. Most people disagree with the system because of the belief that the Senators in our government aren't voted in, but instead chosen through the matai system. If that is the case, then why are we permitting the U.S. Secretary of Interior, a woman or man chosen by the President Obama and not by the people of American Samoa, to make decisions on the local issues that we face today? The Representatives and Senators of American Samoa are well-aware of the local issues and continue to face the same challenges that we face today. The President of the United States and the U.S. Secretary of Interior, which are public officials that the citizens of American Samoa are unable to vote for, continue to address the conflicts of the United States of America.” -Miracle M.

Yes. “Because I believe the decisions made for our island should be made by our own people, and not by the secretary of interior, who probably has never even been here.”

- Manu Thomas

No. “I am definitely not in favor of the veto-override referendum due to the fact that it will benefit both houses of our legislature more than it does for the fellow citizens of American Samoa. Also, I would rather keep things the way they are, considering the role of the Interior deciding what is best for the laws of American Samoa.”

- Merry Christmas Seuseu

No. “I am not. For example, the recent "TALK" about the raising of pay for the governor and Fono members. Yes, it was not passed but the POINT is that they brought up that matter. Why are they discussing their pay raise but not the locals pay. We have a lot of people who are underpaid. Imagine if the Fono had that power. It's simply too much power for the Fono and they will undoubtedly abuse it.” -Annelise Haleck

No. “I'm not in favor of the veto-override. Why? Because I think the government already has too much power and authority over the people, especially when our Senators aren't elected by popular vote.” -Mellody Parungo

No. “Because over 70% of our fiscal network comes from the USA since AS is a US territory. Thus, it's better to stay as it is. Also, it's obvious enough that they're [the Fono] asking for more money and complete control over everything, so it's dumb.” – Ching Ho Hunkin

No. “They’re [the Fono] gonna take advantage of the people and I think it’s better if we have DOI pass our laws and bills instead of the Fono.” -Lana Toia

BOYS BEWARE:
Next time you kiss
your girlfriend
wearing lipstick...
You might as well be kissing a fish. Read more on the story
below to find out why.

DID YOU KNOW?

By Amber Ropeti

Have you ever seen those girls in movies with shiny lips and dazzling hair? Have you ever wanted your lips to shine as much as theirs? Well, want no more my friends. Looks can be deceiving and what you might see as shiny and dazzling is really not that. Did you know that most lipsticks are made of fish scales? Yup, I said it...fish scales. The ingredient under discussion is called pearl essence. It's the silvery stuff found in fish scales that's used in most lipsticks, nail polishes, ceramic glazes, etc., to make them shimmery. Pearl essence is obtained primarily from herring and is one of many by-products of large-scale commercial fish processing. If you're bothered by this sort of thing, you might prefer to get your cosmetics from environmentally aware companies. So, the next time you watch a movie and the cheerleader comes in with bright lipstick, don't be jealous. Be happy. At least duck lips are better than fish lips.

How to Get Away with Murder

Review by: Uperesa Fakava

Ever wanted to murder someone, but was scared you might get caught?

Well, here is a new show about how you can murder, and get away with it!

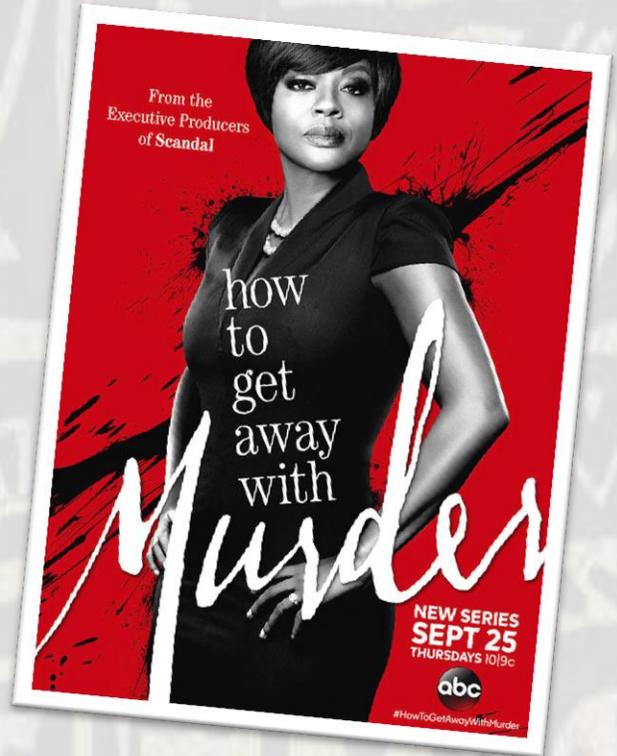

How to Get Away with Murder tells a story of flashbacks of events that leads to an inconspicuous event, all taking place at a school and nearby communities. Well, the first season so far.

Dr. Annalise Keating, the main character, who is a full time lawyer and professor, teaches at Middleton Law School. She picks up five students to be her “interns” and then show them the different methods she uses to win cases.

The students themselves learn to adapt to the legal way of doing business. Not just asking for documents or signing papers, but also sleeping with others, bribing, pretending to be lawyers and other illegal activities. These students act out to win the heart of Dr. Keating and solve a case, or in some cases, hide the true facts.

From Shonda Rhimes, the creator of hit shows Scandal and Grey’s Anatomy, comes this new clever show, that critics are claiming it to be the next Southland and that it might actually win the coveted “Best Drama Series” at the Emmys.

If you want to see for yourself the great quality a show can offer; the drama, the intimate relationships, the scandalous incidents and the cleverly written scripts, tune in on ABC at 10:00 P.M. every Thursdays.

Are you going to watch Big Hero 6, opening in the theaters this weekend? Email us and let us know what you think! (Contact below.)

Missed.....

By: Sumo Ah-Fook

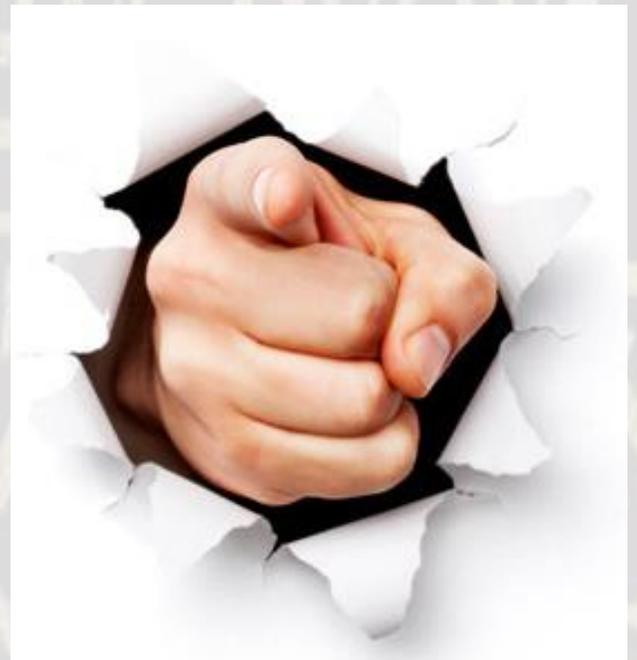

Trimmed my faith and absorbed my kindness
 Grabbed my heart and left me lifeless.
 I stand with a halo of exhaustion
 I will bring redemption and there will be no caution.
 Love is what you used to play with my head
 Heart break is what you have left instead.
 This is no game
 I will play you and I will not be tamed.
 Seek shelter in another
 But wining me over you will falter.
 You had your chance
 And dear love, this is my stance.
 Gone the naïve lover you had
 But a vivacious lover that will make you mad.

Random thoughts!!!!

We are who we aspire to become in life. A strive to live a life beyond what we have, and excel beyond that dream. A path that is not clear but we do not cower in fear. We strive through the obstacles with perseverance until the goal is met. Time waits for no woman or man and that's our push to fight harder. Life as we all know is not handed to us on a silver platter. Our feet get exhausted but we walk that path, because if we stop life has no meaning anymore. People search for the meaning of life or what is their purpose in life. Most find it but those who do not will crave but will not act upon it. Life is war and if you stand and get trampled upon, then what's the point of even being in battle. Sum up your courage and fight with a strong will, even when you lose the will to fight; you will lose as someone courageous and memorable and not a failure.
